

We are not farmers. But with a long career as Ballymaloe-trained chef and after years of learning what makes good stuff, Jasper has a passion for taking-on the entire process all the way from inception to the final moment when it gets eaten.

We can often advise you on the lesser-known factors (and what to do about them) which make all the difference between an ok product, and an incredible one. Be it breed, feed, or something further along the chain such as packaging and labels.
